CASE NO. 10cv1745 BEN (AJB)

ORDER DENYING MOTION TO DISQUALIFY COUNSEL

Plaintiffs,
vs.

BAE SYSTEMS INFORMATION AND
ELECTRONIC SYSTEMS INTEGRATION,
BAE SYSTEMS INFORMATION
SOLUTIONS,

Defendants.

INTRODUCTION

Defendants BAE Systems Information and Electronic Systems Integration, Inc. and BAE Systems Information Solutions, Inc. have moved to disqualify Plaintiffs' counsel on the basis of a purported conflict of interest among the Plaintiffs. Plaintiffs are opposed. For the reasons set forth below, the motion to disqualify Plaintiffs' counsel is DENIED.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiffs are former employees of Defendants, recruited and hired to work on a particular initiative. Plaintiffs allege they were promised they would: receive incentive compensation based on initiative revenues; have five to seven years of program support; and only be terminated for poor performance. Approximately a year into the initiative, Defendants shut down the initiative and terminated Plaintiffs.

1 Plaintiffs' counsel represents all the Plaintiffs in this action, including the Vice President and
 2 General Manager of the initiative, Mark Storer. Plaintiffs allege that BAE executive Larrie Cable
 3 made promises to Storer concerning the length of the project and compensation. Based on these
 4 promises, Storer recruited the other Plaintiffs to join the project. Plaintiffs further allege that Cable
 5 reiterated these assurances to the Plaintiff over a six month period. The project was then abruptly
 6 terminated a few months later. Defendants recently filed a counterclaim against Plaintiff Storer for 7 indemnity based on representations he made to the other Plaintiffs.

8 Defendants argue that the joint representation of Plaintiff Storer and the other Plaintiffs results
 9 in a conflict of interest in violation of the California Rules of Professional Conduct 3-310. However,
 10 each Plaintiff has executed initial written conflict waivers and supplemental conflict waivers
 11 consenting to joint representation.

DISCUSSION

14 Defendants move to disqualify Plaintiffs' counsel because of an alleged conflict of interest
 15 between Plaintiff Storer and the other Plaintiffs. In addition to other arguments, Plaintiffs argue in 16 opposition that Defendants do not have standing to move for disqualification. Because the Court
 17 agrees that Defendants do not have standing to move to disqualify Plaintiffs' counsel, the Court need
 18 not reach Plaintiffs' additional arguments.

19 Disqualification motions are strongly disfavored and "should be subjected to 'particularly strict 20 judicial scrutiny'" because they may be misused for tactical purposes, including harassing opposing 21 counsel and delaying litigation. Optyl Eyewear Fashion International, Corp. v. Style Companies, Inc.,
 22 760 F.2d 1045, 1050 (9th Cir. 1985); Shurance v. Planning Control International, Inc., 839 F.2d 1347,
 23 1349 (9th Cir. 1988); Visa U.S.A., Inc. v. First Data Corp., 241 F. Supp. 2d 1100, 1104 (C.D. Cal.
 24 2003).

25 Plaintiffs argue that Defendants lack standing to seek disqualification of Plaintiffs' counsel
 26 based on an alleged conflict of interest. "As a general rule, courts do not disqualify an attorney on the 27 grounds of conflict of interest unless the former client moves for disqualification." Kasza v. Browner, 28 133 F.3d 1159, 1171 (9th Cir. 1998) (quoting United States v. Rogers, 9 F.3d 1025, 1031 (2nd Cir.

1 1993)). Here, none of the Plaintiffs have moved to disqualify their counsel; rather, all Plaintiffs have
 2 consented to the joint representation. Accordingly, the Court must determine whether Defendants have 3 standing to move to disqualify opposing counsel.

4 Beyond the general rule cited above, the Ninth Circuit has not directly addressed this question,
 5 but “[t]he majority view is that only a current or former client of an attorney has standing to complain
 6 of that attorney’s representation of interests adverse to that current or former client.” Colyer v. Smith,
 7 50 F. Supp. 2d 966, 969, 971 (C.D. Cal. 1999) (citing In re Yarn Processing Patent Validity Litigation,
 8 530 F.2d 83 (5th Cir. 1976)). Generally, only the client will have a sufficient personal stake in a
 9 conflict of interest to meet the demands of Article III standing. Id. at 971.

10 A number of district courts have recognized an exception to this general rule, finding a non-
 11 client may have standing to move for disqualification if “the ethical breach so infects the litigation in 12 which disqualification is sought that it impacts the moving party’s interest in a just and lawful
 13 determination of its claims.” Id. at 971-72 (discussing In re Appeal of Infotechngy, Inc., 582 A.2d 14 215, 221 (Del. 1990) (applying Delaware rules of professional conduct)); Simonca v. Mukasey, No.
 15 CIV S-08-1453, 2008 WL 5113757, at *3 (E.D. Cal Nov. 25, 2008). But, the exception is reserved 16 for an ethical breach that is so “manifest and glaring” that it “obstructs the orderly administration of 17 justice.” Coyler, 50 F. Supp. 2d at 972.

18 Assuming, without deciding, this exception applies, Defendants have not identified an ethical 19 breach infecting the litigation to the detriment of Defendants’ claims. Defendants argue that Plaintiff
 20 Storer might not be encouraged to minimize the extent of his representations to the other Plaintiffs —
 21 potentially beneficial to his defense to Defendants’ indemnity claim — because he is represented by 22 the same counsel as the other Plaintiffs. Additionally, Defendants argue that they may be unable to 23 have direct confidential negotiations with Plaintiff Storer because he is represented by the same
 24 counsel as the other Plaintiffs. Defendants further speculate that the other Plaintiffs might want to 25 pursue a claim against Plaintiff Storer.

26 To the extent these circumstances create an actual or potential conflict of interest in violation
 27 of California Rule of Professional Conduct 3-310, counsel’s joint representation is not prohibited
 28 because Plaintiffs’ counsel has obtained “the informed written consent of each client.” Rule 3-310

1 prohibits representation where there is a potential or actual conflict, but only “without the informed
 2 written consent of each client.” Rule 3-310(C)(2) (emphasis added). Plaintiff’s counsel has obtained
 3 the informed written consent of each Plaintiff.

4 Nor is the alleged conflict non-waivable as Defendants claim. Defendants rely on Klemm v.
 5 Superior Court, 75 Cal. App. 3d 893 (5th Dist. 1977) and Gong v. RFG Oil, Inc., 166 Cal. App. 4th
 6 209 (4th Dist. 2008) in arguing that when an actual conflict exists, it cannot be waived, and counsel
 7 must be disqualified. Not only does this conflict with Rule 3-310(C)’s provision allowing for 8 informed written consent in the case of an actual conflict of interest, but Klemm and Gong do not stand
 9 for this general proposition. The court in Klemm noted that written consent would not suffice when 10 “there is an actual, present, existing conflict and the discharge of duty to one client conflicts with the 11 duty to another,” but went on to find that informed consent would be sufficient when the conflict is 12 potential. Klemm, 75 Cal. App. 3d at 898-99. As to Gong, the Court found a client could not waive 13 a conflict of interest between himself and his corporation on behalf of both himself and the 14 corporation. Gong, 166 Cal. App. 4th at 422. Similar circumstance are not presented here.

15 Additionally, any conflict is not infecting the litigation such that Defendants are being denied
 16 a just and lawful determination of their claims as necessary to give Defendants standing to move to 17 disqualify Plaintiffs’ chosen counsel.

18 CONCLUSION

19 Defendants’ motion to disqualify Plaintiffs’ counsel is DENIED.
